

A Papier Mache World

"a matter of view"

During the Kindred Spirits Spring 2005 Session we'll be working together to create an installation that explores a world within a world. Working in three-dimensional papier mache sculpture we will create objects that commemorate our intimate places where we attempt to establish security within a larger, more unsure world. Classes run from April 8/9 through May 21.

The whimsy and pliability of papier mache make this medium perfect for our focus. Children and their adult partners will construct an object or group of objects such as a child sized piece of furniture, a collection of vessels, a sculptural column, a doll house, a self portrait... The subject chosen will have personal meaning or purpose in the lives of the partners (their "matter of view") and should be considered before the first session. Each week there will be a lesson having to do with the development and history of this medium and artists working in this field.

Alison Perreault –Steubing will be teaching this session, assisted by Tina Persels.

The Kindred Spirits Gala Public Reception for A Papier Mache World is Saturday, May 21 marking the close of Kindred Spirits Spring 2005 Session. (Note: This date is subject to change and will be discussed.) For this celebration, an installation will be designed entirely constructed from newspaper. Black and white type will line the walls while the artwork, donned in color, will establish a contrast within the space. Participants are introduced to visitors during our presentation, and each child receives a certificate and a folder filled with a collection of information covered during the session with extras for additional exploration at home or at school.
